“Eprisma”, the extravagant fabric by Création Baumann looks as if it were a sculpture at the window. It is decked in geometric sequins which, depending on colour selection, shimmer in white, in bronze or in black.

An abundance of gleaming pyramid like triangles in sequin foil compete to outdo each other at the window. The curtain “Eprisma” from the Spring Collection 2015 by Création Baumann transmutes into a striking sculpture. The glistening triangles are appliquéd on the semi-transparent fabric adjacent to each other, in a closely packed strict geometric arrangement. The three-dimensional foil has been moulded and top stitched – an elaborate process. The result is something to behold. The three dimensionality generates depth, the multifaceted light display changes with the angle of incoming sun light. In short: A real eye-catcher that bestows glamour to any interior.

The scene is set by the colour of the sparkling sequins on the fabric. In clear white they impart a crystalline air, which allude to Japanese purism. In bronze the sequins bestow elegant opulence at the window whilst simultaneously following the latest trend in interior design. In refined black they impart a masculine note which underlines the geometric arrangement. Irrespective of the colour, they cannot fail to generate a masterful display of light and shade. The 140 cm wide and 300 cm tall fabric is available as a fabric panel curtain.

“Eprisma”, the luxurious and extravagant fabric from the Spring Collection 2015 by Création Baumann is available from specialist outlets from January 2015.
