STARTING POINT

The Office Group provides flexible spaces to meet and work across the UK. Shed wanted to reflect the progressive spirit of the Office Group movement and its new-start-up residents, which led to a desire for a new aesthetic. 'Not another mid-century modern interior' was the starting point, as was the challenge of transforming a 1980's office block.

SOLUTION

Dividing the site into component parts allowed each area to have a signature palette of colours and finishes. The Clubroom in yellow for example is a more focused, members-only room, surrounded by sought-after 'studio' offices. The open mesh curtain Malta circles a generous sunken banquette, to create an intimate working environment without putting up walls and blocking natural light.
